Your Perspectives

- Career opportunities in international cooperation and development assistance
- Leadership positions in the public and private education sector
- Entering a worldwide network of excellence on international education management

Admission Criteria

The program is open to applicants fulfilling the following criteria:

- University degree (Bachelor or equivalent)
- At least two years of relevant professional experience
- Reference letter from current employer
- Good command of English

Professional experience can be demonstrated through work experience in the education sector or in development cooperation and should be supported by appropriate references.

Contact

Prof. Dr. Pierre Tulowitzki
Institute for Educational Leadership
Ludwigsburg University of Education, Germany inema@ph-ludwigsburg.de

Prof. Dr. Hosam Refai
ICEEM, Helwan University, Cairo, Egypt
hosamrefai@gmail.com
inema@hq.helwan.edu.eg

Application forms available on the website:
www.inema-master.com
Idea & Benefits

International Education Management (INEMA) is a joint venture of the Institute for Educational Leadership at Ludwigsburg University of Education, Germany, and Helwan University, Cairo, Egypt.

The program is aimed at developing and providing managerial and modern leadership skills as well as competencies for cross-cultural challenges in education management and for international reform processes. Graduates receive a joint degree.

Target Group

The INEMA program is intended for persons aiming for or holding leading key positions in the education system. Target groups are current and prospective managers in the education system, who develop and implement ideas for future-oriented education reforms and effective administrative structures:

- Prospective managers from educational institutions and educational administration - managers establishing educational structures for refugees
- Staff members of organizations of development and international cooperation
- Prospective managers in the field of international education
- Staff members of global players

Blended Learning

The INEMA program is structured as a blended learning program and conceptualized as an extra-occupational course that allows participants to continue with their assigned jobs. Hence, the work experience has direct impact on the study course and vice versa, which keeps the program up-to-date and practically relevant. Regular modules combined with cross-border modules ensure a holistic approach that ranges from personal coaching to cross-cultural encounters. An e-learning platform promotes the continuous exchange between students and lecturers from different cultures.

Phase of Attendance: Two attendance phases (10 days each) per semester, alternating at Ludwigsburg University of Education, Helwan University, Cairo and probably one more cooperating university.

Self-learning Phase: Autonomous studying, e.g., with module books, business simulation and case studies.

Coaching: Coaching by experts for professional and personal development, project management and career guidance.

Transfer: Strong focus on transfer of experience, procured by student exchange, best practice studies, internships and project work.

General Information

Study Time: 4 (up to 6) semesters

Tuition Fees: 2,200,- Euro/semester plus enrollment and administrative fees of approx. 280,- Euro/semester. Scholarships can be awarded by DAAD (EPOS).

Degree: M.A. Masters of Arts, joint degree accredited by AQAS until 2020

Teaching Language: English

Location: Ludwigsburg, Germany and Cairo, Egypt